The Class of 2013

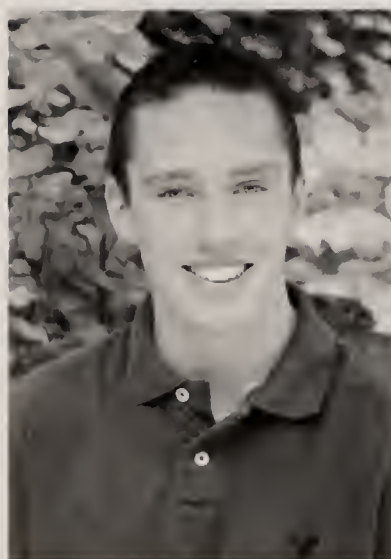

The people behind the screen...

When we all got together for the first time as a staff in June of 2012, we were already anxious about being able to submit the final yearbook at the end of a very busy senior year. Somehow (some may say it was miraculous), we were able to reach our personal goals and do so much more. We undertook the monumental task of designing the yearbook for the class of 2013, which was no small feat. The creators of this yearbook were able to work together for hours on end, and in the end, we are extremely proud of what we were able to accomplish. We made it our goal to create a tribute to the memories and the friends we've made in the past four years at NAHS.

Initially, the tasks we had to complete seemed relatively easy. We had to make the preparations for the senior class, including compiling appropriate superlatives and collecting candid photos. Pretty soon, however, we found out this would be no walk in the park. We found ourselves driving all over North Andover to beg local businesses for ads, organizing fundraisers for the yearbook funds, and fighting with each other about page layouts. After a while, meeting after school (and occasionally during classes) was not enough. We started hanging out together, and we would sit for hours with our heads over our laptops before we decided to come up for air and go out to lunch. We discovered things about each other that we never would have otherwise known, and as a result, we became close. The long hours we dedicated to the creation of this book allowed six completely different individuals to come together and create deep friendships. In the end, after nearly a year of working together, we have realized that all of our hard work and stress have paid off, and all the effort we put into the book was well worth it.

The senior editors would like to thank our junior editors Danielle Voke and Morgan Coakley, who were never hesitant to lend a helping hand or devote endless hours to fix a page layout that we were having trouble with. We wish you two the best of luck in creating next year's yearbook, and we hope that you have lots of help. We would also like to thank Mrs. Wolf and Mrs. Lariviere, who were always willing to listen and help in any way they possibly could. Their guidance helped us in times when we felt the book would never be completed, and we want to thank them for continuously motivating us and giving us the help we needed to complete the book. Thanks to Josten's Publishing Company and especially our representative Tom Keeley, and we're sorry that we never had as many pages completed as you would have liked! Your support and patience made designing the yearbook a more exciting and enjoyable task. We would also like to thank Mark Lawrence Photography, who provided us with many of the images in this book and who always put up with us when we constantly called to say that we had misplaced a CD or needed more photos ASAP. Finally, we would like to thank Apple, for it is from this company we were able to draw the inspiration for this book.

Over the past four years, members of the class of 2013 have formed bonds with people that will last a lifetime and have met people who will impact them forever. Although we will graduate on June 7th, we know that the memories will live on, and it is our hope that this book will serve as a remembrance of everything we have been through together. We hope that we were able to serve justice to the memories you will always have from high school. We wish the class of 2013 luck with their future endeavors, and we hope that after we part ways at the conclusion of our years here, you will all be able to simply flip through this book to be reminded of the great friends and memories you had at North Andover High School.

Congratulations Class of 2013 and Good Luck
Marianna Paradise, Lexeen White, Joey O'Neill, and Kaileigh Rogato

Tyler Medeiros, For our Junior Prom I took my boyfriend, Conor as my date. I spent several months anticipating the event. I was eager to go with him, however nervous seeing as we would be the only gay couple of the event. Growing up in a conservative town in Louisiana I always struggled to fit in - I never felt as if I belonged because I was an outcast. However, the students and faculty at NAHS have welcomed me with open arms. No one was pointing at us at Prom and certainly no one was staring. For the first time in my high school life, I felt as if I was somewhere that I belonged. I no longer felt insecure about being gay, let alone being the person that I am. The students at Prom MADE my high school experience memorable. I will never forget how wonderful and happy everyone made my boyfriend and I feel. No one was going to bully me here.

to be one tough little dude!" Now you're grown up & while not so little, you ARE tough--a fierce & steadfast
defender of your friends,
a talented, intelligent

forget to dance! Love-
